if you can, do; otherwise teach —but not at Oberlin, for here the faculty does as well as teaches, and each year it receives national attention for its productive work. never have its efforts been greater than during the past two years! in '34 it published 30 books and as many research papers; this year its total will be even greater.

the faculty of the arts has completed, or will soon do so, composition and latin texts, a french vocabulary; books on medieval german dramatics, gothic, and american architecture, practical art, chinese social psychology, cicero's return from egypt, on horace, realistic theology, a full-length novel; translations from cicero, and sand's "indiana."

from the con, has come a full length symphony and numerous shorter compositions.

the faculty of the sciences is at work on research with "soft" x-rays, vitamin chemistry, oscillographic analysis of vowel and movements of speech, the earthworm's nervous system; and in addition has published, or is preparing, books on analytical processes, thermodynamics, colloid chemistry, european geography, unemployment, international economic policies, histories of europe, of france under the july monarchy, of oberlin; the sociology of dictatorships, of country neighborhoods; on hygiene, health problems, intramural activities, track and field, and football.

all this the faculty has done, and countless lesser papers, and magazine articles.

the college class of 1936

born of the depression, the present senior class gathered in the fall of 1932, in finney chapel, 340 strong — 180 men and 160 women from 198 different schools in 33 different states and 3 foreign countries with four years of learning and labor ahead of them. Now, with additions and corrections, old '36, her ranks thinned to 244, stands ready for graduation.

boasting 389 members, the class of 1937 began as the largest of its college generation. It began, too, with the greatest disproportion of women to men—226 to 163—the result of emergency action by the trustees, who, never-the-less, got no inferior product, for 45 per cent of the class graduated from their 198 prep schools in the top one-tenth of their class.

graduate school of theology

dean thomas w. graham

the graduate school of theology, or the "theolog," is the third of the three schools which together constitute Oberlin College. Inter-denominational, it is training some sixty students for the ministry and religious work. Its classes are junior, middle, and senior; its organization, the Theological Union; its beautiful Chapel, a place of inspiration; its "quad," the best dormitory on the campus; its library, a haven for college students.

allencroft

bridge games are dull and uninteresting, at least compared to the tense and gripping matches of the checker tournaments which are engineered at allencroft. this is ingenuity in entertainment: so is the allencroft habit of serenading her male guests with "i love you truly." quite as unique, allencroft sets aside time each saturday evening for a brief respite from work and "coffee hour."

fairchild

fairchild is the only house on the campus with plenty of leisure—they have time to burn. and, as extraordinary, is their "white elephant" christmas party for which gifts were swiped so ardously this year that even one of the local boys entered in. it's no wonder then, with all this excitement, that for only two weeks during the first semester some fair-child wasn't in the hospital.

priscilla; once every day a rush for the morning paper.

the morgue

“silence while viewing the bodies.” the slogan of the morgue gives a false impression, for the morgue is not as dead as one might judge from the name. her large and comfortable “vaults” and the “cooling room” on the third floor are frequently the scenes of considerable activity. a favorite trick of the “undertakers” is to pitch beds out the windows.

freshmen pyle out plays long games of pitch and black-jack to kill the monotony of study, pacifies rankled debaters at house meetings with cider and doughnuts, studies to the accompaniment of the radio—then blames low marks on to weak tubes, decorates her walls with futuristic art, and refuses to admit that being near to pyle is an advantage.

ralston's, a small house, is nevertheless remarkable: for touch football games on her front lawn; for an associate member, who calls up from the varsity every other day to check on his mail, but never comes home; for the ingenuity of another who has installed a zipper on the stomach of his zoo lab cat; for the breakfast food named after her.

theological quadrangle

the quad, home of the pious, has its own library and the most sumptuous lounge on the campus.
piety, in the good old roman sense—and that is the way the quad understands it—means good citizenship. the quad has it. watch it around the piano when the candles are lit on exchange night; or listen in at the varsity, the first monday of every month, to their brief business meetings in the lounge. the quad dining hall is one of few refuges for misogynists and lovesick males. this year the quad has worked hard to suppress the red menace.

the season

among the fall sports the football team alone failed to win at least half of its games. eight starts resulted in three victories, four losses, and a tie. the season was featured by strong defensive play and lack of any offensive drive. although a large group of willing sophomores reported, the team was handicapped by a lack of reserves. a series of injuries greatly weakened the team and through continual shifting of the lineup retarded the development of team play. poor pass defense cost the yeomen a 7-0 loss to rochester in the season's opener. the hard-smashing line play and driving defensive play which were characteristic throughout the season brought a 4-0 triumph over marietta in the second fray. showing much more drive on the offense and great improvement in pass defense the gridders traveled to hamilton for their second victory of the season, won 12-6. brilliant oberlin's beret-topped "million dollar" cross country team in the fall six times showed its heels to ohio schools, retained its conference title, upset miami, buckeye title owners, and then twice bowed to michigan schools, first in a dual meet to michigan normal when it was without the services of wing; and a second time in the central states inter-collegiate meet to michigan state, winners of the national championship. oberlin in this meet tied for third with milwaukee. notre dame university second.

although the record of only five victories in sixteen starts would seem to indicate otherwise, the basketball team was one of the best combinations to represent oberlin in recent years: unusually strong opponents were the reason for the small number of victories. during the christmas holidays the quintet dropped games to the youngstown y.m.c.a. and defeated buffalo. the first conference encounter resulted in a surprising 35-30 upset at the hands of kenyon. marietta's band of giants added the oberlin scalp to their already impressive collection. wittenberg's red devils likewise topped the yeomen. then wooster, with high scoring nick frascella on a rampage, handed the crimson and gold her fourth straight conference defeat. but facing a highly touted muskingum team the next week, the yeomen displayed their best ball of the season and entered a 46-38 win in the conference scoring column. a greatly improved case team limited oberlin's victories to one, but hiram fell an easy 38-17 victim. mount union shortly dimmed the victory with a 41-32 setback. stars of past years found the varsity too strong in the glen grey game and were beaten 48-21. reserve topped the yeomen before they were able to gain their final and most exciting triumph of the season, an overtime battle with denison. the season closed with a loss to otterbein in which the local five displayed a brand of ball which held the conquerors of marietta at a standstill for three-quarters of the fray.

"we're bringing home the bacon," thus telegraphed coach Jamerson to announce that the swimming team had climaxed a highly successful year by capturing the conference swimming title—the first that Oberlin has won. As is the case with so many Oberlin teams, the swimmers, in addition to the conference crown, measure the success of the season by a victory over Wooster, the first from the Scots since nineteen thirty-two.

Other victims were Allegheny, Wittenberg, and Denison. Case, Rochester, and in May, Kinsey's fleetfoots climaxed a highly successful season, outspeeded and outjumped a strong Wooster team, to regain the conference title—the fifth they have won in the past seven years. Previous to the title tilt, they took Bowling Green to town in an indoor match, kicked cinders into the eyes of Akron, Reserve, Case, and Wooster, and bowed to a strong Michigan Normal team at Ypsilanti. Sam Barnes hung up the only new school record of the season by leaping 23 feet 9 3/16 inches. His leap, Dye's mile, and Williams' half were the individual conference titles. Captain Jim Holden, a victim of the jinx which has met his three immediate predecessors, was forced out of competition early in the season with a knee injury.

two student boards, the w.a.a. executive board and the sport's board, organize and direct the annual program of women's sports. the former is made up of officers elected by all college women and the latter of sport and seasonal managers. the program they arrange includes class athletics and a system of house leagues. the two boards cooperate in arranging the w.a.a. dance, the winter sport's banquet, and the all-star games.

the student council is the body responsible for activities as widely varied as the campus carnival and the mobilization for peace. furthermore, it has this year reevaluated class officerships, made a partial readjustment of the activity fee, further defined publication regulation; and this spring sponsored a series of leap year social events, inquired into the little-understood grading system, and given official backing to the mock convention.

the men's committee and the executive board of the women's league are the legislative and executive bodies for men's and women's legislation. the men's committee has charge of freshman-sophomore relations. the women's league revised women's rules and in january conducted an institute on "the place of women in the modern world."

the conservatory boards, organizations representing the whole conservatory student body, aim to foster student spirit and fellowship, to link the student and faculty, and to represent the conservatory in its relations with the college. the special project of the men's board is the men's lounge in warner hall; and the two boards together sponsor the thanksgiving party and the con prom.

honor committees

the functions of the honor committee are: to give the student a complete understanding of the honor system and its functions; to eliminate conditions which are conducive to cheating; to help preserve the student sense of honor; and to judge cases in a manner which will help the erring individual as well as protect the student body. oberlin's philosophy is that "an honest education is the only education." and the ideal of the honor committees is to make oberlin a college where cheating is not just forbidden and dishonesty a condition to be eliminated, but where honest intellectual effort is recognized as the only method, all others not considered.

behind these printed pages is an idea; an idea that a college yearbook should be more than a pictured calendar of a year's events, more than a series of snapshots, each showing a single phase of college life; that a yearbook should be a portrait of the year as a whole. to use a more elaborate figure, it should be a tapestry into which each of the elements of college life is woven. college life is not athletics alone; it is not the course of study. the college is not the buildings which house the background of the tapestry we have given you in the opening section "oberlin modes and manners"; and here oberlin as a college distinct from every other college, oberlin as OBERLIN, begins to appear. woven into this background and helping to make it are "oberlin people and personalities"—this is the second section. but because people do not exist independently and because personality develops in the group, these small figures unite into larger patterns. the third and final section of the book treats "oberlin organizations and activities."

olympian

the olympian's task has been to reconcile "campus" with "literary," to steer a middle course between imitation and innovation, to publish essays that were readable yet didn't pander to the tastes of o. henry readers.

olympian emphasis has been on college thought rather than college life, on opinions and ideas rather than actions.

debates, debates, and more debates filled the busy schedule of the forensic union. over fifty organizations in northern ohio heard the union's extension speakers, and intercollegiate debates were held with dartmouth, cornell, new york university, wooster, ohio wesleyan, kenyon, hillsdale, the universities of detroit and michigan, michigan normal, allegheny, and western reserve. but of more permanent importance, the union this year was granted a charter for a local chapter of delta sigma rho, national honorary debating society.

the members of the a cappella choir gain spiritual growth through increasing knowledge and appreciation of sacred music both as art and as a form of worship. they also interpret to others by means of public performance the artistic and spiritual message of the music. four afternoons each week these students attempt to master the music from palestrina's to the present time. regular chapel appearances and concerts form a part of the year's work, but the choir finds its real inspiration in rehearsals under professor christiansen.

of outstanding interest this year, the 46th of the oberlin band history, was the intercollegiate band festival held here in march. w. d. revelli of the university of michigan was guest conductor. eleven ohio colleges were represented; oberlin, by her concert band.

the marching band followed the football team, was on hand for the mock convention, and appeared in assembly and at pep rallies. the women's band played at two football games, half of the basketball games, at the "all-star" hockey and basketball games, and played a concert in lorain. all three bands combined for their annual fall concert, and for a series of outdoor concerts in may.

the things which stand out in the glee club year are the short nearby trips and the long christmas skirmish—this year to ohio, kentucky, west virremembered are the food, the girls, and such incidents as the way the high school fellows at Newark held on to their partners as the latter looked wistfully about them to encounter equally wistful looks; the abundance and the effusiveness of the girls at mc keesport; the christian endeavor meeting at ashland; larry gill playing “the music ## women's glee club . . .

the women's glee club dazzled the audience at its home concert with its "mulberry moires", lulled that audience with music by schubert and strauss, amazed it with compositions by mr. lockwood, and pleased it with the flight of the bumble-bee, by rimsky-korsakov. it taught it about eskimos and eskimees and about oberlin women on leap year. meanwhile it kept rows of perspiring males waiting for the dance which was to follow. during spring vacation, the club journeyed west, gave concerts at indianapolis, st. louis, and chicago; and sang a number of times over the radio to delighted audiences.

association

the dramatic association opened its season with gilbert and sullivan's sorcerer and will close it at commencement time with the merchant of venice. during the year it presented death takes a holiday and the class one-act plays. other features of the year were paying the association deficit, refurnishing the main street studio, reorganizing the production staffs, and instituting oberlin drama on the air.

cabinets of the y. and y.w., meeting jointly in a september retreat, faced themselves with the task of providing the campus with a religious program adequate and varied enough to give the student an opportunity to express himself religiously. the attack has been made in four ways: by revitalizing vesper services—to encourage an interest and concern in religious problems; by holding a religious conference—to stimulate and direct religious thinking; by encouraging discussion for eighteen years one or more representatives have annually been sent by the student body to serve on the faculty of oberlin-in-shansi, a secondary school located in t'aiku, shansi, china. while in the orient, these representatives strive to typify the spirit and activities of oberlin men and women, and seek to share the best of the american heritage.

it is the responsibility of the student shansi committee to appoint representatives who are not only fitted to contribute while in china; but who will on their return to oberlin, foster better understanding between america and china, by linking the two oberlins.

the aelioian literary society has found its own each meeting it devoted itself to an author who has known oberlin either as a student or as a member of the faculty: professor emeritus c. a. wager, president e. h. wilkins, professor r. a. jelliffe, and thornton wilder. in january, a group of aelioian alumni who are resident in oberlin conducted a meeting in the mode of the nineties.

the ladies' literary society chose "the american novel" as their subject for study this year, and were introduced to their study by mrs. lampson, who surveyed the history and trends of the modern novel. in an effort to bring the alumni into closer contact with the society's present members two joint meetings were held—one in the society's rooms and the other in the home of mrs. g. a. bahr. Furnishing Homes is our business—and one which affords us a great deal of pleasure. For nearly a century it has been our privilege to aid in the happy task of creating and furnishing homes that bespeak character and distinction in every detail.

Whether your home requires the expert advice of one of our decorators—or whether you merely need one or more additions to its comfort—we will be ready to serve you.

CINÉ-KODAK
EIGHT
costs only $34.50
—a full-fledged
movie camera

It uses this special film that makes movies for 10¢ a
"shot"

HOW you'll enjoy making movies with Ciné-Kodak Eight. A highly efficient little camera—made with the precision of a watch—and so easy to use. A camera that gives you movies of surprising snap and sparkle. Only $34.50.

But that's just half the story. Ciné-Kodak Eight's cost of operation hits a record low in home movie making.

Let us open the Eight up and show you the "works," the reason why it gives movies at such remarkably low cost. Our comfortable projection room is at your disposal, too. We'll gladly project a reel or two for you at any time.
